ATTACHMENT "A – TRIP DESCRIPTION"

The Oxford Symposium on Employee Ownership is a gathering of leaders, stakeholders, and decision makers in the international employee ownership community. This annual gathering explores major issues and obstacles to participatory capitalism and employee ownership. The 2022 symposium is focused on exploring financial barriers to the formation of Employee Stock Ownership Plans and analogous shared equity arrangements, which are growing and receiving renewed interest in countries around the world including the United States and The United Kingdom.

Held in the historic Sheldonian Theatre at Oxford University, the Symposium is a collegial, participatory gathering of thought leaders, stakeholders, practitioners and government officials that explores and surfaces major issues and obstacles to participatory capitalism and employee ownership. The event is held "in the round" where presenters share their insights and experiences to an audience of participants who in return provide discussion, rebuttal, and augmentation for consideration.

Presenters, panelists, and participants will include current and former government officials, academics with background in employee ownership and equity share arrangements, practitioners in the areas of law and plan administration, and leaders of non-profit organizations operating in the space in both the UK and the Americas.

After first arriving in London, event participants will spend a day in London in briefings by experts and practitioners in the UK system of employee equity share arrangements as well as with current elected and appointed government officials in Parliament and Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs Department. Participants will then travel to Oxford where the Symposium proper will be held for two days. Participants will then return to London for return air travel to the United States.

ATTACHMENT "C" – MISSION AS RELATED TO PURPOSE OF TRIP

The Employee Ownership Foundation has a three-decade long history of funding academic and practitioner gatherings and exploration related to employee ownership and the expansion of employee ownership. The Oxford Symposium on Employee Ownership is designed to convene thought leaders, practitioners, and policymakers to engage in international idea exchange focused on reducing barriers and improving access to employee equity share arrangements in business. By providing funding to allow Senate staff with jurisdictional or oversight responsibilities for employee equity plans to attend and participate in the symposium, the Foundation's mission of education and advancement of employee ownership in the United States will be advanced.

The Center on Business and Poverty is engaged in promoting participatory capitalism throughout the global economy with an emphasis on the UK and the U.S. The Center promotes academic gatherings and leadership on participatory capitalism and has a mission to build worker equity and wealth through shared business equity plans. The Symposium is seeking to tackle one of the most critical academic and policy issues confronting the rate of growth for such equity plans – the financial barriers to their establishment and ongoing operation.

ATTACHMENT "D – Sponsor Educational Activities"Employee Ownership Foundation

Since its founding in 1991, the Employee Ownership Foundation has operated in pursuit of a single overarching goal: to help more individuals become employee owners through education, research, and public awareness.

The Employee Ownership Foundation (EOF) is a recognized 501(c)(3) organization supported by grants and tax-deductible donations as well as the volunteer efforts of dozens of individuals throughout the nation. The EOF is governed by a 50-person independent Board of Trustees with an eight-person Executive Committee.

The Foundation has raised and donated millions of dollars to collect data used by academics, encourage objective research, and to facilitate dialogue about employee ownership between thought leaders. The Foundation has been an early supporter of the Rutgers University Institute for the Study of Employee Ownership and Profit Sharing, the leading center for academic research around employee ownership as a model for business. The EOF sponsors academic conferences and symposiums, funds fellowships and scholarships, executes public awareness campaigns, and distributes technical educational materials.

More information about the EOF and its activities can be found here:

Center on Business and Poverty

The Center on Business and Poverty (CBP) supports businesses that embody the practice of participatory capitalism. The CBP works with companies that create good jobs, and does so through partnerships with firms, as well as non-profits and individuals.

A brief review of CBP activities:

- International – Over the last 15 years we have worked in 37 states in the US and have focused our international efforts on the EU, India, China, Sri Lanka and Mexico. In total, these projects will have, by the end of 2020, influenced the lives of more than two million employees, plus their family members.
- Convening Leaders – organizing conferences in Oxford each year for over 600 cumulative participants who are interested in the types of themes we address.
- Offering Online Financial Literacy Courses – helping leverage technology to improve financial well-being through ongoing financial literacy training. We have assisted more than a million employees and others from over 850 employers and through several newspapers. Working with employers, more than 300,000 employees have completed in excess of 800,000 hours of training. The research shows up to a 70% improvement in financial knowledge, attitudes and behavior – creating fewer late fees paid related to their credit cards, decreased debt, and less stress.
- Tax Free Preparation – Since 2008, our free tax preparation programs for low-income individuals and working families, all in Wisconsin, have helped over 8,000 individuals and families receive over $14,000,000 in tax refunds.

- Helping Start and Grow Companies – assisting 44 firms to start up and grow in U.S. inner cities and different parts of India and the United Kingdom, creating approximately 410 jobs.
- Helping Students – establishing internships for 21 students, and service opportunities for another 52 from various universities, helping them to learn and grow by writing and working on projects at large and small employers.
- Training Managers – continuing a process of training managers of employee-owned companies. To date we have helped train over 670 managers in three-day classes at the University of California – San Diego.
