CONGRESSIONAL PROGRAM
aspen institute

The Honorable John Curtis

U.S. Senate
Washington, DC 20515-0306

Dear Senator Curtis,

I would like to invite you and Sue to our bipartisan, bicameral congressional conference on Securing U.S. Advantage in an Era of Evolving AI in Bellagio, Italy, April 6-11, 2026, including travel dates. Please get back to us with interest to attend the conference by Friday, January 16, 2026. These conference spots fill up quickly due to heavy interest, so we may have to move you to a waitlist if we don't hear back in time. This invitation does not guarantee your participation in the conference.

Artificial Intelligence has emerged as a defining force shaping the global economy and the international balance of power, with profound implications for U.S. economic competitiveness and national security. Control over a complex ecosystem of strategic assets—including compute, data, energy, critical minerals, and human capital—will determine technological leadership and resilience in an era of intensifying competition with China and other global actors. Through roundtable discussions and exchanges with leading policy experts, Members of Congress will examine how advances in AI are reshaping U.S. business, infrastructure, and defense; assess regulatory and trade-offs; and explore integrated strategies to secure technological advantage, manage systemic vulnerabilities, and help shape global regulatory and ethical standards that advance American vitality and security.

Conference attendance is by invitation only. No outside observers, no lobbyists, no congressional staff, and no media are allowed to participate. All conference sessions are off-the-record. No foreign governments are accepted to fund the Aspen Institute Congressional Program. As required by the Senate and House ethics rules, we will provide congressional participants with completed and signed ethics private sponsor forms.

Travel expenses, including business class airfare, meals, and lodging will be paid for by the Aspen Institute; no expenses for entertainment or recreation are paid for in compliance with ethics rules.

The Congressional Program is part of the Aspen Institute, Inc. a nonprofit organization founded in 1949. The Congressional Program was created to promote leadership on public policy by bringing legislators together from both political parties with internationally renowned scholars for high level discussions and analysis. Since our program's inception, more than 639 members of Congress have participated in our 167 domestic and international conferences.

We hope you can join us for this important conference.

Sincerely,

Chl ~ Dent
