These conference spots fill up quickly, so please RSVP as soon as possible. This invitation does not guarantee your participation in the conference.

Using Madagascar as a backdrop, this educational conference will explore a range of issues with significant policy implications for both the United States and sub-Saharan Africa. Through a combination of field visits to nutrition, health, education, conservation, and other program sites, as well as expert-led discussions, participants will examine the security, economic, and development challenges facing the continent. Site visits and conversations will explore how changes to U.S. policies and programs over the past 18 months have affected American engagement on issues of mutual interest and concern. Discussions will address key topics across the continent, including public health; malnutrition, particularly among children and mothers; HIV and malaria; U.S. national security and the growing influence of China and Russia; and biodiversity and conservation. Participants will also have the opportunity to engage with Malagasy communities and reflect on the evolving future of U.S.-Africa relations.

Conference attendance is by invitation only. No outside observers, no lobbyists, and no media are allowed to participate. All conference sessions and site visits are off-the-record. No foreign governments are accepted to fund the Aspen Institute Congressional Program. Overnight at the Novotel Hotel in Antanannarivo

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5:

8-8:45 AM: Breakfast

9:30-11:30 AM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Health:

Integrated Primary Care Services Including TB, HIV, PMTCT, and Syphilis
For more than twenty years, the United States has been a major international force in combatting HIV and preventing the transfer of the virus between mother and child during pregnancy (PMTCT). Largely through the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) and contributions to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria, American assistance has saved over 26 million lives and prevented more than 8 million babies from being born with HIV. Participants will visit an integrated primary health care facility in Antananarivo where a one-stop service model provides antenatal care, early HIV diagnosis and immediate antiretroviral therapy initiation, community referrals and TB/HIV collaborative activities. The delegation will have the opportunity to engage with the health center management, midwives, community health workers and patients to learn about their experience with integrated care.

12-1:00 PM: Working Lunch Briefing with Power 4 Interventions to Reduce Child Malnutrition
Participants will learn about the results of a Johns Hopkins University analysis that identified the four most impactful and cost-effective ways to reduce childhood mortality due to malnutrition: 1) Prenatal vitamins for pregnant women; 2) Breastfeeding support for mothers; 3) Vitamin A supplementation; and 4) Ready-to-use therapeutic and preventive nutritional food (RUTF) for treatment of wasting. The discussion will be led by an expert on the Power 4 protocol.

1:30 -3:30 PM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Nutrition:

Tanjaka Food Production Facility
According to UNICEF, nearly one-third of all children under the age of five in sub-Saharan Africa suffer from chronic malnutrition and where half of all preventable deaths across the continent are linked to undernourishment. In Madagascar, the number is even higher where nearly 40 percent of children under five are malnourished. The family owned Madagascar company, Tanjaka Food, established in 2009, produces ready-to-use therapeutic and preventative nutritional foods (RUTF), such as Plumpy

Nut, to combat child malnutrition. Their goal is to make nutritional solutions accessible to NGOs which serve the most disadvantaged households in Madagascar and neighboring countries. Participants will tour the production facility and learn about the impact of RUTF, a nutrient-dense, high-calorie peanut paste, on treating children suffering from severe malnutrition.

6:30-8:30 PM: Working Dinner with Development Implementing Organizations

During dinner, participants will have the opportunity for one-on-one conversations with representatives of several development and health NGOs, including FHI 360, Population Services International, PATH, Catholic Relief Services, and the World Wildlife Fund. Delegation members will learn about the work of these organizations in Madagascar, impact their programs have achieved and challenges they face going forward.

Overnight at the Novotel Hotel in Antananarivo

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6:

6-6:45 AM: Breakfast

7-9 AM: Flight to Fort Dauphin, Madagascar

11 AM-1:30 PM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Malnutrition:

Severe Acute Malnutrition (SAM) Clinic

Sever Acute Malnutrition (SAM) clinics are specialized outpatient and inpatient treatment facilities dedicated to managing Severe Acute Malnutrition. These services operate within local basic health centers, mobile clinics, and intensive nutritional recovery centers to treat life-threatening child malnourishment driven by drought and food insecurity. Participants will visit a SAM clinic in Fort Dauphin where they will learn about the severity of malnutrition in the southern region of Madagascar, what services are available at the clinic and engage with mothers and their children who are receiving treatment at the facility.

1:30-2:30 PM: Working Lunch:

Discussion with local representatives of UNICEF and Operation End Starvation

UNICEF operates comprehensive programs in Madagascar focused on health, nutrition, education, child protection, social policy, and water, sanitation, and hygiene. These initiatives target vulnerable children, pregnant women, and communities affected by severe poverty and recurring natural disasters like cyclones. Operation End Starvation (OES) is a recently created public-private partnership, with funding from the Department of State, with a target to eliminate child deaths from acute malnutrition by scaling up low-cost interventions like RUTF. OES aims to deliver 3.2 billion packages of RUTF and 14 billion tablets of multiple micronutrient supplementation (MMS) by 2032, something they believe will save the lives of 1.8 million children around the world.

2:30-5:30 PM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Health and Nutrition:

UNICEF Mobile Clinic Treating Malnourished Children

UNICEF mobile health and nutrition clinics in Madagascar deliver life-saving medical care, malnutrition screening, and vaccinations to isolated and disaster-affected remote communities. These roving teams bridge critical gaps where residents often face walks of several hours to reach a permanent health center. In addition, these mobile clinics offer prenatal consultations for pregnant women and treatment for common childhood illnesses like malaria. The delegation will engage with health workers and members of the community to learn about bringing critical health care to hard-to-reach locations.

6:30-8:30 PM: Working Dinner:

Mining Sector in Madagascar and Competition with China

Africa is home to roughly 30% of the world's reserves of critical minerals essential for the global energy transition and technological advancements. Minerals, such as graphite, cobalt, lithium and rare earth elements, are crucial for production of electric vehicles, renewable energy infrastructure, and digital devices. With this degree of mineral wealth, Africa is positioned to leverage these resources that will drive economic development, create jobs, and foster sustainable growth. At the same time, it also raises concerns over how mineral extraction is managed through sustainable and transparent practices that guard against the potential for exploitation. Madagascar has rich mineral reserves, including nickel, cobalt, ilmenite, graphite, and precious gems. But as in other African countries, the sector struggles with environmental and social challenges.

Another aspect of Africa's mineral wealth is the competition between the United States and China for access to these critical resources. China maintains the dominant position following many years of investment and mining across the continent. The U.S. and Europe, however, are ramping up their own partnerships and activities to counter Chinese influence. In August 2026, the US Development Finance Corporation committed its first ever mining investment in Madagascar with up to $4.84 million toward the UK-based Harena Rare Earths mine for pilot plants and testing to loosen Chinese supply chain dominance.

Participants will hear from representatives of Madagascar's mining sector and learn about investment opportunities for American and European mining firms and the role that plays in competing with China.

Overnight at the Ankoba Beach Hotel in Fort Dauphin

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7:

6:30-7:00 AM: Breakfast

7:00-9 AM: Travel to Ambovombe

9:00-9:20 AM – Courtesy Call on Local Health Officials and Regional Partners Platform

Participants will have the opportunity to chat with Local Health Officials to establish a relationship and ask any preliminary questions ahead of the visit.

9-20-10:40 AM: Site Visit Focused on Education and Food Security:

Ambovombe Primary School

The delegation will visit an urban school in Ambovombe town with a student population of 2,000. For the past five years, Global Communities, in partnership with Catholic Relief Services and FHI 360, have managed a U.S. Department of Agriculture McGovern-Dole program in 162 schools with nearly 57,000 students throughout the southern region of Madagascar. The program aims to improve food security, reduce impacts on malnutrition, and improve literacy and primary education, thereby contributing to more self-reliant, productive societies. Since funding began five years ago, this Food for Education model has helped double student and teacher attendance at supported schools. Since beginning as a pilot activity in 2000, the McGovern-Dole program has operated in 25 African countries, reaching more than 20 million beneficiaries.

Participants will observe classroom activities and school feeding operations, meet with administrators and teachers to learn what McGovern-Dole has meant for educational achievements at the school and talk with parents and students to hear how the program has impacted families in the community.

11:10-11:30 AM: Courtesy Call on the Regional Directorate of Public Health for an Introduction to Malaria Prevention in Anosy Region Treating and Preventing Malaria at the Rural Community Level

Participants will have the opportunity to chat with the next site to establish a relationship and ask any preliminary questions ahead of the visit.

12:50-2:00 PM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Health:

Treating and Preventing Malaria at the Rural Community Level

The delegation will travel to a site managed by the American-based health non-profit, PATH, and learn about the REACH Malaria program. Over the past quarter of a century, the world has made tremendous progress in controlling malaria. The most significant gains have been in Africa where 142 million cases of malaria and nearly 1 million deaths were averted since 2000. But malaria remains a major health challenge on the continent where it's estimated that one person dies from the disease every minute. Participants will learn about various interventions used in the REACH Malaria program and engage community members who benefit from these services and hear how it impacts their livelihoods.

2-3 PM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Food Insecurity and Humanitarian Relief:

World Food Program Food Logistics Center and Warehouse Hub
Participants will visit a logistics center managed by the UN's World Food Program (WFP) where they will learn about food shortages facing Madagascar. Food insecurity in the country is driven by multiple factors, including limited crop diversification, dependence on rain-fed agriculture, low incomes and rising food prices. Climate shocks are increasing in severity and frequency, causing damage to agriculture, infrastructure, biodiversity and coastal resources, and leading to the loss of lives and livelihoods. Southern Madagascar is regularly affected by drought while the southeastern regions are prone to recurrent cyclones and flooding. Nearly 20 percent of the population is currently facing severe food insecurity.

WFP strikes a balance between emergency response and longer-term investments in resilience-building, emergency preparedness and social protection. The organization attempts to reduce long-term dependence on humanitarian assistance, instead emphasizing national capacity-building, in close coordination with national and local partners.

5:30-7:30 PM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Conservation:

Nahampoana Reserve
Madagascar has one of the highest concentrations of unique biodiversity on earth, with roughly 90% of its wildlife and plants existing nowhere else. Ecosystems safeguard rare species like lemurs, stabilize local human livelihoods dependent on natural resources, and fight global climate change. Losing these habitats means permanent extinction for thousands of endemic species. Over 70% of Madagascar's population lives in poverty and relies directly on farming, fishing, and forest yields for daily survival. Healthy ecosystems protect food and water security. The island's remaining tropical forests and coastal mangroves hold large amounts of carbon and buffer communities against extreme weather events like cyclones and severe droughts.

Participants will visit Nahampoana Reserve, located just outside of Fort Dauphin where conservationist guides will discuss the importance of protecting ecosystems and challenges the country faces in its conservation efforts.

8-9 PM: Working Dinner

During dinner, participants will be seated in a strategic order that promotes the opportunity for group conversations. This time will serve as a reflection of the week and how to proceed forward with these new observations.

Overnight at the Ankoba Beach Hotel in Fort Dauphin

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8:

7-8 AM: Breakfast

8:30-10 AM: Educational Site Visit Focused on Global Health Security

Health Center in Fort Dauphin

Weak public health systems regarding surveillance, diagnosis, and response to health threats and emergencies are a chronic challenge in many African countries, including Madagascar. They pose dangers to not only the country itself but have implications for regional and global health security. Through the Strengthening Infectious Disease Detection Systems (STRIDES) activity, FHI 360, with U.S. government funding, collaborates with the Ministry of Health, to build a more resilient, effective, and self-reliant health system.

Participants will visit a local health center in Fort Dauphin where they will learn about the major interventions of the program: 1) improving laboratory and diagnostic capacities, biosafety, and specimen transport; 2) modernizing and digitizing surveillance systems and strengthening early detection; 3) strengthening alert mechanisms and rapid response capacities; 4) promoting management based, reliable, real-time data; and 5) improving detection and response to events affecting mothers and children, the most vulnerable populations.
